DELIVERING ON OUR PROMISE

The D2 Promise Scholarship Program (D2 Promise) pays for all tuition and fees at Pikes Peak State College (PPSC). With college costs covered, students can utilize federal and state financial aid to cover living expenses, allowing them to focus on their education. When D2 voters approved the mill levy in November 2024, the community committed up to $2 million annually for 10 years to ensure students can focus on their education instead of working multiple jobs to afford college. This report shows how this investment changes lives in Southeast Colorado Springs—and why it's the first program of its kind in America.

The D2 Promise Scholarship Program believes in removing barriers, not just creating opportunities.

First-dollar funding

D2 Promise pays tuition and fees upfront before any other aid is applied. This means federal and state financial aid turns into money students can use for living expenses and other costs (most Promise programs work backwards, only covering what's left over after other aid is applied)

Comprehensive coaching

Students get guidance navigating college and career paths through PPSC's dedicated Promise coaches

Community investment

Publicly funded for 10 years with full transparency

Proven results

75% of D2 Promise students graduate, transfer, or are still enrolled at PPSC

THRIVING STUDENTS THE STORIES BEHIND THE NUMBERS

Quetzaly Gudino

Sierra High School Graduate, PPSC Nursing Student

“My time in Promise Programs has been one of the most unique, fulfilling times of my educational journey. The initially jarring transition into college became warm and welcoming through my Promise coaches. I’ve been given the chance to meet more students, become more involved in my education and finances, and ultimately achieve my career goal of becoming a nurse.”

Spencer Harris

*James Irwin Charter High School Graduate,
PPSC Physical Therapy Student*

“Promise Programs is great for getting to know other people and networking. My coaches helped me a lot with finding jobs and keeping my grades up. That’s one of the great benefits of this program.”
